PRESS RELEASE

February 14, 2008

Kohner, Mann & Kailas, S.C. Becomes
First American Law Firm Admitted to the British Credit Services Association

Milwaukee, WI, February 11, 2008: Kohner, Mann & Kailas, S.C. today became the first American law firm to be accepted as a member of the British Credit Services Association (CSA).

The CSA was formed in March 1988 from the merger of two collection industry bodies dating back to 1902. In Britain, the CSA is a self-regulatory industry body, the only national association for companies active in relation to unpaid credit accounts. Members handle more than 20 million debt cases annually, representing claims of $30 billion (£15 billion) in value. Today the CSA has members in many countries, including China, India and South Africa and is a member of the 15 nation Federation of European National Collection Associations (FENCA).

"This is a significant step in our on-going commitment to be a leader in providing legal support for international commercial transactions" said Steve Kailas, the President of KMKSC. "More and more of our clients are trading internationally and therefore require international support for their revenues and contractual rights. Joining a respected body like the CSA increases our European contacts while emphasizing to our European clients that KMKSC understands their needs, including being seen to use members of the CSA, or their domestic FENCA equivalent, for all collection services."

More information about the British Credit Services Association can be found at <http://www.csa-uk.com/csa/about.php>.
